DEDICATION

THIS BOOK IS DEDICATED TO THOSE WHO EVEN NOW HAVE BECOME A PART OF THE CAVALCADE OF 1942 . . . THE STUDENTS WHO HAVE LEFT TO JOIN THE ARMED FORCES AND THOSE WHO WILL LEAVE SHORTLY. PRACTICE BLACKOUTS, FIRST-AID COURSES, AND EVEN GRADUATION HAVE BEEN LEFT BEHIND FOR ACTION. THERE IS NO MORE NOBLE SERVICE THAN THE DEFENSE OF OUR COUNTRY . . . SO WE SALUTE YOU, FELLOW AMERICANS, OF WHOM WE ARE PROUD.

But Anne, will the students support it?

Published annually by the students of George Washington University, the "Cherry Tree" is a record of our college life in story and picture. This past year national defense and universal war have become key factors in our thoughts and actions. The 1942 "Cherry Tree" has tried to present some phases of the program inaugurated by President Marvin contributing to the war effort.

THE SCHOOL OF Medicine CLASS OFFICERS

CHARLES JAMES WALLACE, JR.
President

ANSON R. HYDE
Vice-President

MARY ELLEN COLLINS
Secretary-Treasurer

The School of Medicine was founded in 1825 and since then has stood consistently at the top of the list of American Medical Colleges with respect to the achievement of its graduates. Its contribution to scientific medicine is also impressive. Theobald Smith, Walter Reed, and Frederick Russell were successive heads of the Bacteriology Department, and their brilliant records have given the George Washington University Medical School a history to be proud of.

In this atmosphere of rich tradition, seventy-two hopeful and ambitious freshmen met on a September afternoon of 1938 ready to sail through medical school and thereafter set the world on fire. Agee through Zappala, they had come from twenty states, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Mexico, Panama, Salvador, and Puerto Rico. Their first meeting together was short and businesslike. Even before there was time to recover from hiking up four flights of steps and catch one's breath, boxes of bones had been distributed, assignments in Gray were noted, and the first round had begun.

Assignments were terrific, examinations frequent, and marks disheartening. Before many days had passed, an epidemic of acute freshmanitis had spread like wild-fire, a disease characterized essentially by symptoms of confusion, irritability, headache and insomnia. Relief was afforded by Saturday night fraternity "mixers" and bull sessions. Some developed a more severe case of the malady and collapsed.

The second year was attacked with renewed vigor and a toughened resistance to the relentless stream of lectures and laboratory assignments. Physical Diagnosis at Gallinger together with lectures in Medicine, Surgery and OB, contributed to making the Sophomore's task more interesting. Symptoms of confusion gave way to understanding, and headaches were replaced by a feeling of well-being and confidence.

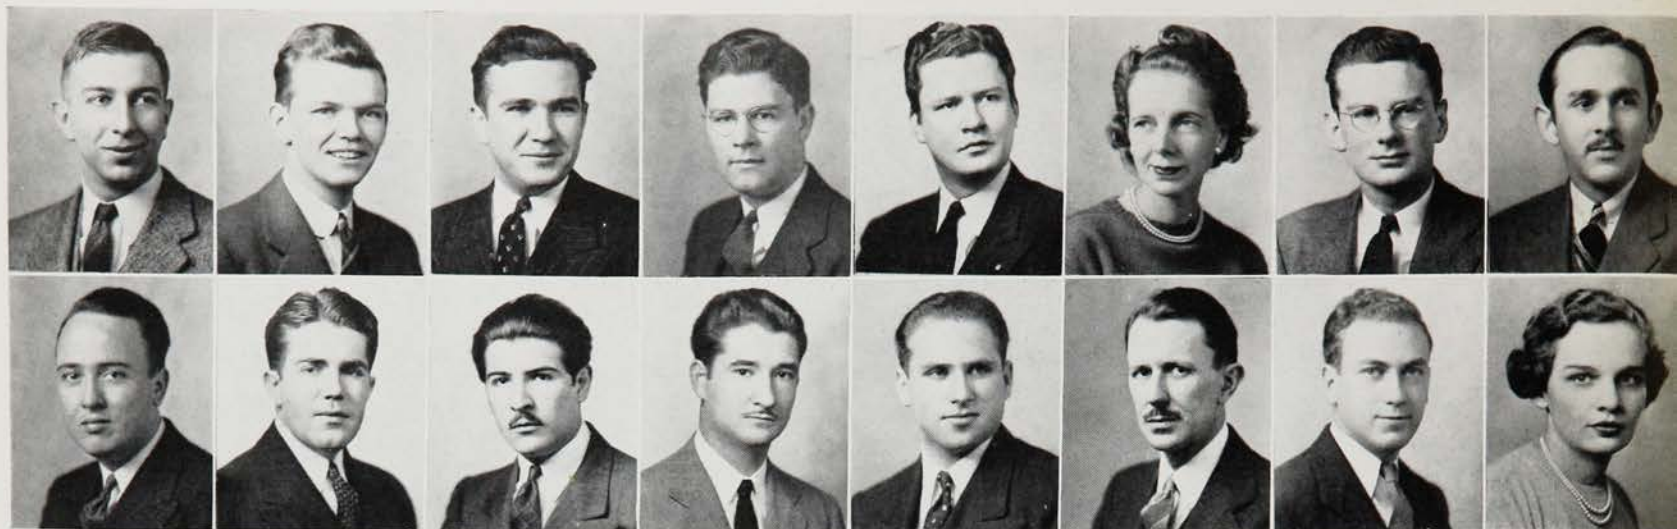

The class was replenished at the outset of its Junior year by the addition of eight transfer students. Clinical work was begun in earnest at both Gallinger and Emergency Hospitals and stirred serious doubts in the minds of the third year beginners. Perhaps, they admitted, there were a few points yet to learn—a suspicion that soon was proven a reality. As the year progressed, the probability of the United States at war occupied the minds of everyone in no uncertain terms. It is commendable that George Washington was one of six medical schools in the country to prepare for such an emergency by offering summer school for those who desired earlier graduation in order to be available for Army or Navy service at an earlier date. Twenty-nine of the class signed up and received their diplomas in February, 1942. By the end of the year, every student enrolled in the medical school will hold a commission in either the Army or Naval reserve, and will go into active duty upon the completion of his internship.

Thus ends the story. The Class of '42, numbering seventy-two strong, the largest class in ten years at George Washington, with nearly half of its members in the Honor Society, has weathered the vicissitudes of medical school and is ready for come what may. Its members are sincere in their hope that out of the paradox that confronts them, namely their desire to relieve suffering in fellow men who persist in making war, will triumph an understanding and peace among nations.

Dean of the Law School

The SCHOOL OF LAW

Under the leadership of Dean Van Vleck, the George Washington University Law School has become recognized as one of the finest in the United States today. It is the oldest law school in the District of Columbia and was one in the country to offer a patent law course. With many graduates prominent in all branches of law activity, the school has proved that it is well qualified to prepare students for successful legal careers.

The student body is recruited from all parts of the country . . . government workers, business men, day school students, and even politicians help to swell the crowd that fills Stockton Hall every afternoon and evening. This diverse mass of people is drawn together by the Student Bar Association, which is the one organization representing the entire student body. Its officers are chosen by the faculty for their scholarship, leadership, and legal ability. This student association operates as an advisory council over every activity in law school. It sponsors radio programs, holds mock trials, in which our bar-risters-to-be argue actual cases, and accumulates data for administrative purposes. An important function of the Student Bar Association is to supervise the publication of the Law Review in collaboration with the faculty and student board of editors. On the social side, the Association sponsors an annual banquet and dance which is the outstanding affair of the year. Perhaps the greatest contribution of the Student Bar Association is the new library reading room. This room is unique because students may talk and smoke while reading, may relax in the luxury of red leather chairs, or carry on a heated conversation without being disturbed.

Just as every phase of student life in America has been affected by the present emergency, so has the daily routine in our law school. Evening classes start much later now, since most of the students are working overtime for the government. The facilities for our patent law course have been limited with the transferring of the United States Patent Office from Washington and many of the professors have left to take administrative posts in the government service. Despite these changes, the Student Bar Association is endeavoring to carry on its fine work of previous years and at the same time is devoting much of its energy toward coordinating student activities with the national defense program.

Making its debut in the Southern Conference as a full-fledged member in the Fall of 1941, the George Washington University football team found itself facing a tough schedule with uncertain prospects. Potentially the team was a good one, but before the season had gone very far, Old Man Whiskers and injuries blasted it from one end to the other. The Colonials lost three I-A ends prior to the start of the season when Frank August, Adolph Biasini, and Ludwig Lewandowski were called to the colors. Mike Monchlovich, senior center and twice a letter winner, was called before the school year was two weeks old. The outstanding players kept from active service on the gridiron because of injuries were Johnny Picco, an All-District player the year before, Dan Snyder, Paul Nugent, Scott Gudmundson, Henry Agusiewicz, and Floyd McGlinn. Eddie Wilamoski, a polished tail-back with two years' experience, was lost from the squad because of a summer illness. Season's results were: 1 won, 1 tied, 7 lost.

Coach Bill Reinhart's men won their season opener in approved fashion against Mt. Saint Mary's, 25-0, but it proved to be their only victory of the year. After losing on the Polo Grounds in New York to Manhattan, 0-23, the Colonials returned home to gain a 0-0 deadlock in their first Conference fray against Washington and Lee, the third contest of the year. Then, as the season continued, they were defeated by Georgetown, William and Mary, Furman, Clemson, Bucknell, and Wake Forest.

Although the season was marked with defeat, there were many bright moments. The brilliant defensive play of such men as Seibert, Koniszewski, Martinson, Ziobro, and Nugent, and such hard-running and hard-driving backs as Pollock, Weber, Gudmundson, Graham, and Fedora—who was drafted by the Brooklyn Eagles' professional football team—will long be remembered by Colonial fans.

Two of these men, Paul "Babe" Nugent, and Burnell Martinson, joined the Army Air Corps early in January. Their careers on and off the field at our University predict their success in the air.

BALL...

William Jennings Bryan Reinhart, the masterful basketball artist from the University of Oregon, completed his seventh season as head court mentor at the University this year. He finished the season by winning 11 and losing 9, and brought his total number of victories at George Washington to 100, as against only 38 defeats in the same period.

The Colonials never really got started until after Christmas. Victims of rather decisive reverses at the hands of Oklahoma A. & M., Oklahoma, and powerful Indiana, they appeared to have lost a lot of the spark from the year before when Coach Reinhart had his greatest G. W. squad, winner of 18 out of 22 games. They came back strong after the holiday period to beat old rival Georgetown, Army, and Maryland in a row and emerged as undisputed holder of the mythical metropolitan championship. It was the only club in the Southern Conference to beat the strong Duke Blue Devils, holder of the loop championship two years in succession.

In Matt Zunic the Colonials had the outstanding player in this section of the country and the school's greatest all-time court performer. Zunic broke the one-year scoring record set by Bob Faris in 1938 during both his junior and senior years. He also broke the three-year scoring mark of 544 points established by Forrest Burgess in 1933. Zunic scored 150 points as a sophomore, 243 as a junior, and 266 as a senior, making a total of 659 points.

Close behind Zunic was the hot little Hoosier, Bobby Gilham, a handful of basketball player in any league. Nearly everyone picked Bobby as the finest defensive player on the team and his 155 points played no small part in Colonial victories. He was Matt's running mate on the court and together they made as good a pair of players as one would desire. The three referees who saw more Southern Conference games than any other officials nixed Zunic and Gilham as the two top players in the league. Hard-working Roy McNeil had his hot nights for the Colonials and often was outstanding in his accomplishments. Zunic, Gilham, and McNeil are seniors. Joey Gallagher, the neopy Irishman from St. John's Prep School, and big Ed Gustafson held the other two regular posts in most of the games. More will be heard from them; next season when they team up with Seniors Ralph Matera, Jack Fitzgerald, Len Sokol, and John Konizewski; Juniors Bob Groetzinger, Jim Myers, Jim Rausch, Ted Reichwein, and John Schumacher; and a host of Sophomores.

After serving as head coach of baseball since 1932 at the University, genial Ed Morris resigned in March of this year. Long interested in George Washington University athletics and especially in baseball, Coach Morris was responsible for inaugurating this sport at the University. He had only one losing season and that was last year when the Colonial nine won nine and lost ten. He resigned because of the pressure of war business. Assistant Coach Vinnie DeAngelis, former outstanding pitcher and fielder of the Colonial camp, was named as Morris' successor and started his career as head coach by seeing his team win the first game played under his leadership. American University was the victim, 10-9. Due to the war, the Colonials are playing fewer baseball games this season, with all opponents being played at home.

F E M I N I N E

The wide variety of sport activities this year have offered unlimited opportunities for the women students of the University to show their athletic ability in all lines. And for those who have no ability . . . there has been adequate instruction to acquire the same with the minimum amount of effort. Through the aid of Misses Atwell, Lawrence, Turnbull, and Burtner, and with the cooperation of the Women's Athletic Association, women's sports have been made an important part of student life at the University.

Soccer and hockey were the most popular fall sports with tennis and golf lagging behind. Perhaps the spirit of competition and the fact that one can bash her way through the opposition have been responsible for this popularity, for there is nothing like venting your emotions with a good swift kick of the soccer ball or a quick slash of the hockey stick. The hockey teams reached such perfection that games were arranged with the University of Maryland, Trinity College, and the Washington Field Hockey Association. There was also scheduled a triangular playday with Hood, Goucher, and G. W. competing in hockey and soccer, but the weather had other plans and the meet was called off amid deluges of rain. Rain, rain, and more rain prevented the G. W. Archers from extensive competition but various challenging opportunities arose. One team competed against Maryland U. and several players took part in the National Telegraph Archery Contest.

Winter put the girls indoors, but sports activity was not hindered in the least. A gay season of basketball was initiated by the playday with Hood held here on our campus. In the same meet, G. W. U.'s fencers tied with Hood and won four out of seven badminton matches. The following week, G. W. encountered another time-honored foe, Maryland U., and our gym swarmed with muscle-molls competing against one another. Competition was further carried out this winter with the badminton singles and doubles tournaments which were held every Thursday and Friday evenings. The traditional winter sport, ice skating, had many enthusiasts who trekked merrily to Riverside Stadium twice a week to receive expert instruction. Amid spills and chills, our ice skaters gained such assurance on the ice that a show was arranged to display their grace and show their progress.

TOUCH

Although not a sport but rather an activity, Modern Dance has interested many amateurs this year. Its purpose has been to develop interest in a new field of artistic expression which is fast becoming an important part of women's activities in many colleges. Three prominent groups, Junior Orchestis, Orchestis, and the Master Group successfully worked together to produce the G. W. dance recital which was a masterpiece of rhythm and form.

Come spring and Green-shirted golf and tennis enthusiasts form parades toward the tennis courts and golf course in Potomac Park. Every day the bus is also loaded with archers and archery equipment plus many girls who prefer canoeing amid the cherry blossoms to the more strenuous sports. Under sunny skies in the shadow of the Washington monument, the G. W. U. gals play to their hearts' content and return to school reluctant to get back to the grind. In spite of the lure of the out-of-doors, swimming gives evidence of becoming the most popular spring sport. Life-saving courses, beginners' courses, class teams, and class meets all offer a wide variety of fun. The finale of all this activity was the intramural meet which turned out to be a gigantic splash party for all. Another climax to the year of women's sports was the regatta held at the Tidal Basin. This pageant of color and movement attracted many onlookers and was a fitting close to an outstanding year of women's athletics.

To the Right, Top to Bottom: If it's speed you want, may we suggest this? . . . If you haven't tried this before, you've been missing the thrill of a lifetime.

Mortar Board is composed of senior women who have been outstanding in scholarship, leadership, and service to the university during their years at college. Since the beginning of this year the Mortar Boards have been busy helping the freshmen get adjusted by sponsoring "Apple Polishing Luncheons" where students get a chance to meet with their professors and discuss their problems. Now that war has come, the girls are doing their bit for national defense by helping out in the Civilian Defense Office of the university. If there is work to be done anywhere, you can be sure that the Mortar Boards will be on the job . . . so don't be surprised if they all turn up in Ambulance Corps uniforms ready to go to work.

HIGH-LIGHTS

ZARPEL

HOME

Queen Cherrie Frost

Peggy and the boys whoop it up on the way to the rally.

COMING . . .

Homecoming . . . that time when old grads come back and mingle with the laughter and gayety of the college crowd . . . remember "the game" with Clemson and how we yelled our lungs out for the Colonials . . . yellow "mums" and blue streamers everywhere . . . decorations that spelled Welcome Alumnae on every frat house . . . that hectic campaigning for the university sweetheart . . . music and laughter as we lost ourselves among the hundreds of other couples dancing at the ball . . . I still hear the strains of "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody" as the lovely sweethearts proudly swept down the length of the ballroom . . . how we breathlessly waited for Mr. Neville to crown the queen of our hearts for 1942 . . . the great moment came . . . "Long Live Queen Cherrie" echoed in our ears even after the music and the fragrance of the evening drifted away. . . .

Top: Webb's wiles win votes. Bottom: "Fight on for W. G. U.!"

Here they are in all their glory: Margaret Floecker, Cherry Frost, and Margaret Copeland.

Presenting . . .

THE 1942 CHERRY TREE BEAUTY PARADE

To keep in step with the Spirit of National Defense, the 1942 "Cherry Tree" invited men from the armed forces to pick the most beautiful coeds. Here you see Lieutenant Von Bracht of the Naval Air Corps, Captain Harold Lofton of the Army Air Corps, and Captain Roswell Rosengren conferring on their final selections for first, second, and third place winners after viewing our campus lovelies. On the following pages are the lucky girls of their choice.

Miss Margaret Kinsman

Miss Marion Kinsel

MARTHA BROCK

RAY DOOLEY

GERTRUDE ENGEL

BETTY FREYBURGER

Miss Dulcie Teeter

BETTE HASLWANTER

RAYE HUDSON

PAULA ZIRPEL

ANNE BLACKISTONE

The first woman president of the Student Council . . . A woman executive . . . Famous for her interest in student affairs . . . Yet Annie's never too busy to have fun . . . Always the "life of the party."

The

MATT ZUNIC

G. W. U.'s candidate for All-American basketball . . . An unassuming fella who made the grade the hard way . . . Matt will go down in history as one of the outstanding athletes at G. W.

CAMILLE CRAIG

Married coed . . . Prominent in the District sports world . . . Well-known for her 3.9 average and her tennis championships . . . an all-around athlete.

JACK JONES

Eleven years a part-time college student . . . "Big boss" of the janitors . . . "Buck" Jones will be long remembered for his genial manner and hearty laughter.

RICHARD BURNS

Dick's one of those people you can depend upon . . . We admire his energy in being the first president to really organize the senior class . . . And we are proud of his success.

MARGARET KINSMAN

The guardian angel of Pan-Hel . . . An outstanding leader in women's athletics . . . "Eagle-eye" Peggy has a record in rifle and archery marksmanship that's hard to beat . . . and no one can ever beat that sparkling smile.

HALEY SCURLOCK

Haley has left us now for theological school . . . But we'll remember him for promoting clean student politics and organizing the religious clubs of the university.

MARGARET COPELAND

Co-editor of this year's "Cherry Tree" who called the yearbook office home for several months . . . A leader in activities of all sorts . . . "Copie" to all of her many friends . . . An unbelievable combination of intelligence, charm, and dazzling blue eyes.

THE UNIVERSITY HANDBOOK

The Handbook is published by the students of George Washington to help the incoming Freshmen find their way around the University. It is an information booklet covering the many varied activities and organizations on the campus and also includes general information about the University itself. School songs, cheers, plus information about social fraternities are all combined in the Handbook . . . It is truly an index to our college life.

In losing its talented leader, Leon Brusiloff, to the Marines, the George Washington University Band feels it has made a great contribution to defense. Many of our Band boys have also responded to the call to the colors.

But in spite of the inroads the draft has made upon their numbers, the Band has been unusually fortunate in enlisting the services of Harry Allen, a former protege of Brusiloff's, as leader. He has carried a difficult position, but has been assisted by the never failing enthusiasm of its girl president, Marcia Crocker, and the support of the boys themselves.

Many innovations have been introduced this year. The drum majorettes made a colorful addition, while Arthur Vliet, the commanding drum major, has done a fine job in drill work. And any band in the country would envy the services of the performing drum major, Richard Abercrombie, who holds the national championship in baton twirling.

Christian Science Organization at the George Washington University, founded in 1931 and composed of students and faculty members interested in Christian Science, is one of seventy-six such organizations in universities and colleges in the United States, England, and Canada. The aim of the Organization is to aid University students in obtaining a more comprehensive understanding of education and service, and in attaining greater spiritual development through the study and application of this Science in all University activities.

Regular meetings are held at 8:50 P.M., in Columbian House, the first and third Thursdays of each month during the school year. Authorized periodicals on Christian Science as well as the international daily newspaper, "The Christian Science Monitor," are maintained in the University Library by this Organization.

The annual reception, to which all students and faculty members are invited, was held September 14, 1941, and was addressed by Major Jordan of the Army Air Corps. A free lecture on Christian Science was given by Dr. John M. Tutt, C.S.B., member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, on May 9, 1942.

The Columbian Women was organized in 1894. The main purpose of this organization is to foster the best interests of the University by providing scholarships for deserving women students. These scholarships are financed through membership dues paid by the Columbian Women and are available to any woman student in the University. Each year announcements are made in the "Hatchet" and their necessary qualifications are given.

Fellowship and comradeship are also promoted by these women because any woman with 30 semester hours to her credit may become a member upon application. All faculty members and wives of trustees may also become members. Thus people of various interests are brought together within this organization. Graduate women are encouraged to join the ranks of the Columbian Women, but this is not a society solely for graduate women. Meetings often include lectures and talks where much intellectual information is exchanged and current problems of the day are discussed. Thus, the Columbian women have become an important part of the University by encouraging intellectual curiosity and promoting scholarship.

For the fourth time since the reorganization of Cue and Curtain, the club's life has hung by a mere thread. And for the fourth time, it has come through with flying colors. Prospects of moving into the new auditorium bolstered up the old-timers of the group and brought out more new people for dramatic activity than had ever before appeared.

The opening production this season sent thrills and chills down the spines of the sparse audiences at Pierce Hall. "A Murder Has Been Arranged," by Emyln Williams, was done under the able direction of Floyd L. Sparks, and starred such old-timers as Elaine Berry, Jack Salamanca, Hilda Schreiber, and James McKechnie.

Newcomers were given their first chance in three one-act work-shop plays presented in December. These followed the regular Cue and Curtain plan of having work-shop productions entirely directed and acted by students. Through such a plan, many talented students are found who are able to continue their work in future three-act productions.

As it disrupted many things in our lives, the war also disrupted Cue and Curtain's routine. Our budding playwrights were too disturbed to concentrate on the annual one-act play-writing contest, and as a result, the contest had to be canceled. Such contests should continue in the future, however, for they are an important part of the organization.

With three major productions scheduled for the second semester, the organization settled down immediately for some grueling hours of work. The first result was a melodrama, "The Octoroon, or Life in Louisiana," with a cast of some twenty characters, none of whom had ever worked with Cue and Curtain before—new life is given to the club.

The final production of the year was "The Land Is Bright," by Edna Ferber and George Kaufman. This entertaining story of the robber barons and the newly-rich in polite society starred Elaine Berry, our perennial favorite, and a host of other popular faces around the campus. The antics of the Kincaid family trying to keep up with the Joneses combined with an excellent cast made "The Land Is Bright" the most successful play that Cue and Curtain sponsored during the year. Climaxing the season of dramatic activity will be the annual May Banquet at which all of our would-be thespians gather and a chosen few will reap rewards for the best acting performances.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

To you we say, "Thanks a Million."

To the Press Bureau for the use of their phone, their office, and their pictures. And for their never-failing moral support. To Charley Wallace for his sports write-ups.

To Bill Warner for watching the figures and keeping our finances straight.

To Dick Stultz of the Standard Engraving Company for his super cooperation and willingness to help us with any problems. Also those afternoon cokes.

To Joe White for taking the best pictures in this book.

To Muriel Chamberlain of the Benson Printing

Company for making our layouts a hundred times and advising us when we needed it . . . which was often.

To the Medical School for their wonderful cooperation and helpfulness . . . and most of all for their interest in our book and the undergraduate school.

To the "Hatchet" for their loyal support and nice fat columns when we needed them. Also for the lend of their ace photographer, Joe.

To the Student Council for backing us to the nth degree whenever we were in a jam.

To the members of our staff (the ones who worked!) for working like dogs and doing their work faithfully without griping.

FIGHTER PLANES

like these cost $55,000 each

THE MORE BONDS YOU BUY
THE MORE PLANES WILL FLY

YOU KNOW the program: 60,000 planes this year! 45,000 tanks! 20,000 anti-aircraft guns! All to defeat the war lords for whom this great land of ours is the richest prize of all.

You know the cost: BILLIONS. But you know, too, that freedom is priceless—that whatever this war costs us, it is a million times cheaper to win than to lose. That is why you are asked to buy Defense Bonds to the limit of your powers, regularly, month after month. Only by steady purchases out of earnings by millions of Americans in all walks of life can a program so enormous be carried out—for it is the purpose of these Bonds not only to help pay for the planes, guns, and tanks we need to win the war, but to put brakes on inflation and a ballast on taxes.

Knowing all this—and remembering that even for so great a cause you are not asked to give your money, but to lend it, at good interest—need you be urged to buy?

SUCH FUN

to shop in a store that's all fashion from the ground up.

Here at Jelleff's, young people enjoy congregating in their own smart shops for Junior dresses, coats and sportswear; finding their accessories' needs well provided for too, throughout the store.

Just shopping for ideas, or seriously shopping with the girls . . . Jelleff's welcomes you at all times.
